SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1867.

There is a revolting condition of in Tennessee. The negroes are white conservatives are disfranchised. A nost stringent and infamous law is in force, recognizing conservatives as criminals to be punished. Brownlow is Governor, and he has a military force of thonsands at his command, all armed by the radical Congress to secure a radical trimph in the State.

One would think all this enough, but no.

Brownlow and Co., beholding the workings of the conservative spirit in all por tions of Tenneasee, are frightened. They have forebodings of defeat at the polls. Their organs are declaring before hand hat the coming election, result as it may, will not be permitted to overthrow radi calism in that State or to interfere with its operations. They publish notice that no popular vote will be suffered to change he State Executive. They proclaim that Brownlow will remain Governor, no matter what may be the vote cast against him. They publish warning, that, if all else fails, Congress will step in and de him Governor in virtue of its own And they evidently think that Con gress will constitute him military Governor, if that's the kind of Governor he prefers to be. His favorite and confiden ial organ, the Nashville Press and Times. "He who supposes that Etheridge, if elected, would be suffered by Congress to rule Tennessee, knows little of its iron will and determination.' This is a very foolish declaration to be made by the Governor and his editor, but they are very foolish fellows. When they know of any ontrage projected against the xultant and malignant to be able not to talk about it. It is a luxury to them to feel the malice of devils, and an added luxnry to utter it. But, if it is ordained that Brownlow is to remain Governor whether he or his opponent be elected, what is the use of an election? Why from Congress, Col. INDIAN FIGHT IN KANSAS.—The Fort Dodge, Kansas, correspondent of the New not one that the world can fail to ad- York Tribune furnishes the following particulars of a fight in which six Cheyennes were killed:

According to the instructions received from Gen. Hancock, Major Cooper moved his two companies of cavalry to Cinmar-ron Springs, which is about thirty miles from this post. His orders were to interccpt all Cheyennes and Sionx crossing a that point. A corporal, statioucd as a ve dette about four miles from the Cinmarron was grazing his horse, when he heard was grazing his horse, when he heard a shot, and, at the same time, a bullet whistled by in close proximity to his body. On turning round he perceived an Indian deliberately loading his piece to fire a second shot. He fired his piece at him and at the same time saw a body of six Indians making toward him. He therefore mountained his horse and rode health toward ed his horse, and rode hastily toward camp, and informed Major Cooper of the and, on coming up to the place designat by the vedette, found the Indians post by the vedette, found the Indians poated on an island in the Arkansas river, natur-ally strongly fortified. The Iudians, on seeing the military party approach, fired at once on them, severely wounding one of the soldiers. The soldiers, who were under the command of Lieut. Berry, opened fire, and soon made the island natenab for the Indians, who then, after a short sistance, retreated across the river, firi as they went. As soon as they gained th other side, they commenced to run, and then commenced the chase. For ten miles the cavalry followed them, and only miles the cavalry followed them, and only desisted from the chase when they found that all were killed. They left the bodies where they fell. They found a woman's scalp, with beantiful long, auburn hair, tied to the breech-clout of a Cheyenne, and the sight of this embittered the soldiers greatly, and they refused to hury the bodies. The two companies of cavalry camped in the vicinity of the place where the bodies lay, and they informed me that ... wolves could be heard tearing and dethe wolves could be heard tearing and de-

He has, therefore, recently leased, for a time, the large steam mill formerly owned by L. L. Lloyd, and has expended some $1,800 in repairs and fixing it like the mills in the West Indies. Even with his limited facilities for grind-ing, this senson he will send to Europe or America over one hundred thousand pounds of sugar, and a proportionate share of syrnp and molasses. Classification of Apples. We call the attention of our read ers to the very interesting article f pen of Dr. Jno. A. Warder, one of the best informed Pomologists in America, which we copy from the American Journal of Horticulture. This is the first effort at such a classification, and should experience prove it has defects it is certainly a step in the right direction:

With the greatest increase of varieties that are cultivated in the unreseries and planted in the orchards, and with the extended length of the fruit-lists discussed at give ns a philosophical classification. Some arrangement would appear absolute by necessary; and one American writer, J. J. Thomas, has essayed to group the When attempting to analyze a list of some thousand names of varieties of apples which have been collected from the writings of pomologists, the catalogues of nurserymen, and from various other sources, the necessity for a classification was most fully realized.

Enropean authors were consulted to see what they had provided in the way of elassification that might be adapted to our own country. Several formule were found, but they were all too complex in

The general figure was found to be di-isible into four well-marked forms: son; but, in season or ont of season, we tried one—that is, Slanghter, Young, Gov. Helm, R. D. Geoghegan, and myself. The apple is striped, round, narrowing a little at the blossom end, largely above mediate of the striped of the s lst, The rear, having the axial diame

This is particularly the case when the sides are nearly parallel, and the ends are transacted, so that the fruit assumes a cylindrical appearance. Hnggins of Glasgow, and D. L. Adair of Hawesville, Ky., are entitled to much credit for their experiments in producing new varieties from seedlings, and confirm me in the opinion I have heretofore ex-pressed that we will have to depend for earance.

Our nurserymen are deficient in one thing that our Northern friends succeed admirably at; that is, in having agents to cauvass the country and obtain orders for trees. Various ramors are circulated in the city, and no doubt they have gone abroad, that many of the banks in the city have suffered seriously by the failure of Watts, Crane, & Co., of New York, Indeed, it was stated that two of the banks would, in consequence of losses, be obliged to suspend. We have investigated the subject, and can confidently assert that there is no foundation for the rumor. Not a bank in the city is in any way incommoded in the least. Large amounts of paper on Watts, Given, & Co. have been discounted by the banks, but, from what we learn from sources entitled to confidence, they will not be losers in the setlements. There is no question that the failure above stated affects our own State naterially, but not to a ruinous extent. Watts, Crane, & Co. had large dealings in this city. Clarksville, Paducah, Henderson, and other tobacco points. Tobacco erests have not been the sufferers. It s the losses on cotton they have suffered by. We earnestly hope the concern will vet come out whole, and not a dollar will be lost by parties holding their paper.

FUNERAL OF CAPT. JAMES RUDD.-The funeral ceremonies of the lamented Capt. James Rudd took place at the Cathedral of the Assumption yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, in the presence of a vast concourse of sorrowing friends of the deceased and his family.

An eloquent and impressive oration was elivered by Rev. Father Lank Spalding. Dr. Ben. J. Spalding, Rev. Walter Coomes Rev. A. DeGangier, and Rev. C. J. Coomes were also present and assisted in the solemn services.

DEATH OF A PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHER. Miss Rebecca Clark, one of the first-class assistants in the Seventh Ward School, died on Thursday and was consigned to the grave yesterday. In respect to her memory the school was closed and the eachers and pupils joined in the funeral obsequies. The deceased was a most estimable young lady, and was greatly endeared to her pupils and to all who knew day night held a conference with the Southern Relief Commission for the pur nore of devising some more efficacious plan of raising funds with which to snpply the pressing wants of the Sonthern poor. This meeting was participated in by some of tion from this county, and a large and inthe most prominent of our citizens, who were present by invitation. Their interchange of sentiments was marked by the ntmost benevolence and liberality. All were impressed with the truly pitiable situation of the Southern people, and deeply sensible of the danger of procrastination in relieving them. After a protracted consultation it was decided to call a meeting of the ladies of the city in Masonic Temple on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. It is to be hoped that this meeting will he largely attended The object is to induce the ladies to cooperate with the Relief Commission in collecting money and supplies to he transmitted Sonth. So far, this noble work has been almost wholly performed by bounded pleasure from first to last. At the gentlemen of the Commission. The blessed ladies have never been known to stand back in such an emergency, and overwhelmed with applause, the spontawe feel convinced that they will not only neous outbursts of appreciative feelrespond to this call for a meeting, but that they will organize and commence the good, merciful work at once and carry it through actively and successfully. At the conference referred to, a number of suggestions were made by which the derived some thanks in a very touching manner. She respond to this call for a meeting, but that ing and sincere esteem. These frequent sweet music in her grateful memory. Miss collections will probably yield not less Athena, on attering these last words, was than an average of ten or twelve thousand affected to tears, and the mood communidollars per month. But, while we are disposed to commend this feasible plan, of course the ladies must be left to such a that it were not inevitable. But the afletermination of the matter as may them appear most expedient. We have not the slightest disbelief of the ladies' ability and cheerful inclination to undertake a labor that promises such grand resnlts in succoring and saving the povertystricken families of the South. It will be to them a labor of love. They will engage in it heart and soul; and when they do, we adjure our people at large to do their part freely and abundantly. The urgency of the case admits of no hesitaion or half-work. Let there be union and zeal and liberality, and untold bless ings will be achieved both for the pleading sufferers and their deliverers.

AN OLD NEGRO FORND DEAD - Late Thursday night Coroner Moore received information that an old negro man was found dead in an ont-house on Seventh street, between Chestnut and Broadway. He proceeded to the place, but the hour being very late, the inquest was postponed nntil yesterday. The deceased was known hy the name of old George Booker, and was eighty-six years of age. It is said he attempted suicide a number of years ago, hy cutting his throat with a razor, but the wound except a hole through the wind-pipe was not of a serious character, and although he partially breathed through the aperture, his health was otherwise good. This defect, and old age, comhined was the probable cause of his death The result of the inquest was as fol- this meeting be fully attended, and it

Chambers of Commerce in Europe—International Law— Free Trade.

A few of the officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce met at the rooms of the Merchants' Exchange, yesngham, England, and to hear such sug-tions as he chose to present. The interview was of the nature of a conversational discussion, in which the province and powers of the Chambers of Commerce in England and on the Continent were touched upon. There Chambers of Comand separate institutions; the former being composed of members of all important trades, including the retail branches of business, and even lawyers. They seldom have a meeting of the whole society, but the Council transact most of the business with consistent principally of metars.

ness, which consists principally of matters appertaining to the public, commercial and political interests. On nearly all questions of public policy, and especially on commercial matters, the Government consults the Council of the Chamber of Commerce. They have grown in power during the last ten or twelve years immensely, and are all associated in England, in one National Chamber, which gland, in one National Chamber, which meets once a year in London, generally in February, just before the meeting of Parliament, and whatever measures they recommend have great weight. The association is found of great value in enforcing the demands and supplying the wants of commerce, obtaining reciprocal legislation between different nations (as substantially the same system is prevalent on the continent), interchanging opinions the continent), interchanging opinions and obtaining and imparting useful infor-attention by Mr. Field now, is that the demands of civilization, the requirements of commerce, and the growing desire to lessen the calamities of war, require a change in international law that shall declare all private merchant vessels of beligerents, as well as neutrals (unless contraband of war), in time of war, free from capture either by privateers or regularly commissioned war ships. This of course was presented without reference to the nasettled claims in regard to the late Confederate cruisers, but for the purpose of obtaining an expression of the sentiments. that the horrors of war would be ma-terially lessened. The subject of free trade was discussed for some time. Mr. Field believes in free trade as a principle, a mathematical truth, as he expresses it, a right principle commercially, at all times and everywhere. In England it has been found by experience that the freer the trade the greater the revenne; try is increased by relieving the burdens

The conversation lasted over two hours, and the matters discussed were referred to the Board of Officers of the Chamber for further consideration. With mutual expressions of thanks, the meeting adjourned.

The difficulty which has been pending for some weeks between Col. Breckinand Reporter, and Mr. Gratz, editor of the Gazette, was referred to Gen. R. M. Gano and Rev. M. Talbott, and settled satisfactorily and honorably to both parties. The Union Sunday-schools of onr city have made arrangements for their annual May celebration on the 17th inst., in the woodlands of Mr. Jas. Weir, near this
